'Astonishing', 'Spine-tingling', 'Supernatural'. Possibly the most complete hypercar there's ever been. These are just a few of the comments made by the world's leading motoring writers after they drove the Porsche Spyder 918 for the first time, just before its launch in 2014. From its game-changing, high-powered hybrid set-up to its exterior design, like its weight-saving Spyder roof set-up, that has had a profound effect on the nature of Porsche sports cars and race cars ever since. Here's seven reasons why the 918 Spyder made such a splash.

718 Spyder RS

Power	_____	493 hp
Top speed	_____	308 Km/h
Weight	_____	1485 Kg
Price	_____	162.350$

In its current guise, the Porsche 718 Boxster has been with us since 2016, yet its bones date back to the 981-generation Boxster of 2012. Ancient in car terms, but this car still feels great. Porsche got the fundamentals just right. In all its guises, the Boxster has always offered perfect handling balance and a driving experience that's hardly compromised compared to its tin-top Cayman counterpart. In fact, the Boxster is typically lighter than its Cayman equivalent, and so it is here with the Spyder RS.
